Saving Baby Elephants

Mishak rubs (擦) his eyes when he prepares warm milk. Like other people looking after babies, he is 29. It is 5:30 a.m., and he hasn't had much sleep. Mishak sits next to the baby elephant, smiles and makes sure she finishes the breakfast.

Mishak is a 30 from an elephant rescue (救援) center. 31, many elephants meet problems, so they need rescuing here. For one thing, hunters 32 elephants for their ivory. For another, people build homes and plant fields where 33 used to live. Hungry elephants walk into the villages and fields to look for food. They often cause serious damage (破坏), so farmers kill 34. As a result, adult elephants often leave their babies behind.

When a baby elephant 35 its mother, it's also in great danger. This is because it needs its mother's milk for about four years. 36 this milk, the baby has little chance to live. Research shows that elephants, like people, have 37. If the mother elephant dies, the baby elephant often becomes sad and ill.

The center's job is to raise these baby elephants and send them back to the 38 step by step. First, keepers take turns looking after the baby elephants 39 they don't want an elephant to depend on one of the keepers too much. Then keepers take the elephants into the forest. This is a(n) 40 part of the process because the elephants learn how to eat in the wild and communicate with others. When an elephant is four and no longer needs 41, keepers move it to the wild. This makes elephants become 42. It often takes them eight to ten years to get used to the wild.

At bedtime, Mishak has to lie down and 43 with his baby elephant. Mishak says that when he leaves the babies, they cry. Does he need an alarm to wake up? "Oh, no," he says. "The elephants are our alarms."

Why do We Yawn?

Do you yawn? There are about 20 reasons that scientists think are possible for yawning after research. They do not know exactly why yawning happens, but they do know many facts about yawning.

We know that everyone yawns in the same way. First you open your mouth slowly. Your mouth stays open for about five seconds. You take in a lot of air and then push it out. Then you quickly close your mouth. We also know that yawning is contagious. When you see someone yawn, you yawn, too.

Many people say they yawn because they are bored or tired. That might be true. People do often yawn before they sleep and after they wake up. However, we know that people also yawn when they are excited or nervous. Olympic runners, for example, often yawn before a race. Why is that? In 2007, scientists found that a yawn can help a warm brain cool down.

Some scientists believe that yawning makes you notice things more quickly. When you yawn, you breathe deeply. You also stretch (强化) the muscles (肌肉) in your face, mouth, and neck. Your eardrums stretch, too. Maybe this helps you to be quicker to notice things.

In some countries, people think yawning is not nice. People put their hands over their mouths to cover a yawn. In other countries, people think yawning is healthy. They think that opening the mouth very big can let good things in. When they breathe out, they think that bad things go out of the body with the air.

Scientists do not spend much time studying yawning. That is probably because yawning does not hurt. It is just something we do.

68. What does the underlined word “contagious” in Paragraph 2 mean?
 A. Able to spread quickly. B. Able to breathe easily.
 C. Able to change easily. D. Able to sleep quickly.
69. Why do Olympic runners often yawn before a race?
 A. They are too tired or too bored. B. A yawn can let good things in.
 C. A yawn can help a warm brain cool down. D. A yawn can stretch the muscles in their faces.
70. What is the main idea of Paragraph 5?
 A. Reasons for yawning. B. Advantages of yawning.
 C. Disadvantages of yawning. D. Different ideas about yawning.
71. What can we probably infer from the passage?
 A. People use different ways to yawn.
 B. Scientists will do further research on yawning.
 C. It’s hard to notice things quickly while yawning.
 D. Some scientists think yawning is good for people.
72. What would be the best structure of the passage?

B) 请先阅读下面短文，掌握其大意，然后根据短文内容从下面方框内的七个选项中选择五个还原到文中，使短文意思通顺、结构完整，并在答题卡上将其序号涂黑。一空一句。

Bamboo is a wonderful plant for many people around the world. 73 People make tables, clothes, medicine, and musical instruments with it. Pandas may eat bamboo every day, but people can also eat it.

74 Some bamboo grows so quickly that people say they can watch it grow. The speed of growth depends on the type of bamboo, the earth and the season. Normal bamboo grows 3–10 cm a day. It usually grows in tropical (热带的) areas. 75 Bamboo plants are found in Asia, Australia, parts of Africa, and South America.

One of the world’s oldest building materials is bamboo. Like today, people use it because it’s very strong. They used it to build houses, boats, and bridges. The Chinese made a bamboo bridge over the Min River in Sichuan, China almost 1000 years ago. 76 Also, bamboo is still used to make houses today, especially in China and Philippines.

As a part of history, bamboo is very important. The great scientist Thomas Edison did not invent the light bulb (灯泡), but he made it perfect. He wanted the material inside to burn for a long period of time. He tried over 1000 different types of materials. 77 One day, he tried to use a piece of bamboo and the light bulb lit up for over a thousand hours. This invention helped other scientists to make the modern light bulb we use today.

- A. You can still visit it today.
 B. There are over 1000 uses for it.
 C. However, none worked very well.
 D. Bamboo is light because it is empty inside.
 E. It can also be found in other parts of the world.
 F. Chinese people like drawing pictures of bamboo.
 G. The fastest growing plant in the world is bamboo.
